A Pioneer in Photography

Born in 1873 in Nashville, Tennessee, Vaughan grew up in a time when women were expected to conform to societal norms.

But Vaughan had a restless spirit and an unyielding passion for photography.

In 1903, she became the first woman to enroll in the prestigious Clarence H. White School of Photography in New York City.

There, she honed her skills and developed her unique artistic vision.

Capturing the Essence of America

Vaughan's photographs captured the essence of early 20th century America.

She traveled extensively, documenting the lives of ordinary people in both rural and urban settings.

Her images reveal her deep compassion for humanity and her ability to connect with people from all walks of life.

A Multifaceted Artist

In addition to her photography, Vaughan was also a talented writer and filmmaker.

Her writings offer insights into her artistic process and her perspective on the world.

She also produced several films, including "The House by the River" (1921), which is now considered a lost film.

A Legacy of Inspiration

Rm Vaughan's legacy is one of inspiration.

She was a trailblazing woman who shattered glass ceilings and paved the way for future generations of female photographers.

Her work continues to be celebrated for its beauty, humanity, and historical significance.

In "Camera Woman," a comprehensive biography, author Deborah Klochko tells the extraordinary story of Rm Vaughan's life and work.

Through extensive research and interviews, Klochko paints a vivid portrait of a remarkable woman who overcame adversity to pursue her passion.
