Barack Obama's presidency has been a disaster for the US military. He has slashed the defense budget, weakened our alliances, and emboldened our enemies. As a result, our military is now weaker than it has been in decades, and our national security is at risk.

One of the most damaging things that Obama has done is to slash the defense budget. In 2010, he signed into law the Budget Control Act, which capped defense spending for the next decade. This has forced the Pentagon to make deep cuts to its programs, including training, equipment, and personnel.

The cuts to training have been particularly damaging. In 2013, the Pentagon reduced the number of training days for Army units by 20%. This has led to a decline in readiness, and it has made our troops more vulnerable to attack.

The cuts to equipment have also been significant. In 2014, the Pentagon announced that it would delay the Free Download of new F-35 fighter jets. This decision was made in Free Download to save money, but it has left our Air Force with a smaller and less capable fleet.

The cuts to personnel have been the most damaging of all. In 2013, the Pentagon announced that it would reduce the size of the Army by 40,000 soldiers. This is the largest reduction in the size of the Army since the end of the Cold War.

The cuts to the military have had a devastating impact on our national security. Our military is now smaller, less well-trained, and less well-equipped than it was before Obama took office. This has made us more vulnerable to attack from our enemies.

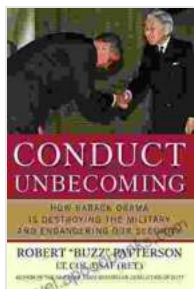

In addition to cutting the defense budget, Obama has also weakened our alliances. He has alienated our allies in Europe and Asia, and he has failed to build new alliances in the Middle East.

Obama's foreign policy has been a disaster. He has alienated our allies, emboldened our enemies, and made the world a more dangerous place.

The damage that Obama has done to the military and to our national security will take years to repair. We must elect a new president who will rebuild our military and restore our alliances.
