Music has the power to move us, inspire us, and even change the world. But what happens when music is censored? When bands are banned from performing or songs are deemed too controversial to be played? These are just some of the stories that are explored in this fascinating book, which takes a deep dive into the history of music censorship.

From the Puritans to the PMRC

The history of music censorship in the United States can be traced back to the Puritans, who banned certain types of music, such as dancing and singing. In the 20th century, music censorship was used by the government to suppress political dissent, especially during the McCarthy era. In the 1980s, the Parents Music Resource Center (PMRC) launched a campaign to censor explicit lyrics in music, which led to the creation of the Parental Advisory label.

Banned Bands and Censored Songs

- The Beatles were banned from performing on the BBC after John Lennon made a sarcastic remark about the Queen.
- The Rolling Stones' song "Sympathy for the Devil" was banned by the BBC for its alleged pro-satanic lyrics.

- The Sex Pistols were banned from performing in the United States after their song "God Save the Queen" was deemed to be offensive to the British monarchy.
- 2 Live Crew's album "As Nasty as They Wanna Be" was banned by several states for its sexually explicit lyrics.
- Marilyn Manson's album "Antichrist Superstar" was banned by several countries for its violent and blasphemous lyrics.

The Impact of Censorship

Music censorship has a significant impact on free expression. It can stifle creativity, prevent important messages from being heard, and divide society. In some cases, censorship can even lead to violence.

The Future of Music Censorship

The future of music censorship is uncertain. With the rise of the internet, it is becoming increasingly difficult for governments to control what people listen to. However, there are still many countries where music censorship is a reality. It is important to continue to fight for freedom of expression and the right to listen to the music we want.
